Changing Shape by the artist and poet Leah Lubin

The Courage to Change by Leah Lubin

Not young, not old.

But, still in the process of changing.

Myself in transition

with the courage to change

still on my side.

At some point courage is all you have.

No correct answers.

No easy path.

So, I step forward

accepting what I have to do.

Apparently clapping is no longer in.

Snapping of the fingers is what now passes for applause.

My first lesson in the Santa Cruz poetry scene eloquently explained during an event at the Art and History Museum.

So, I promise to try it.

Will no longer clap, but snap.

My fingers ready.

My heart open.

Ready to change.

About Leah Lubin (<http://yareah.com/author/leah-lubin/>)

Leah Lubin is an author and artist. Born in Haifa, Israel in 1951, she moved to England when she was six years old.

By the time she was 14, she knew that she wanted to be an artist, and at the age of 17, she enrolled in the Barnet College of Art, part of the London University system.

She moved to the United States in 1979, and became an American citizen in 1986. Leah now makes her home in California.
